

Young Filmmakers Workshops

The goal of the Young Filmmakers Workshops is to combine the forces of filmmakers working in the industry with the youth of today to learn the skills to become both artists and professionals in the digital filmmaking age and storytelling revolution.

Our Young Filmmakers are getting more than the traditional "camp" experience, but a life altering understanding of how filmmaking transcends traditional possibilities.

- Scott Kinnamon, Supervising Instructor

Over the past seven years, Young Filmmakers Workshops have blossomed from 10 students in a two-week program to eight unique workshops with an attendance of 100 students. The diverse group of kids ranging from ages 11 to 17 have gone on to film schools such as NYU, Emerson, Brown, and Princeton to study film at an even higher level.

Actor Christopher Lloyd having a discussion with Young Filmmaker Workshop students during the 38th Denver Film Festival

James Di

Young Filmmaker Workshop students posing with actress Zoë Bell of Camino

James Dimagiba

Past Guest Lecturers Include

Daniel Junge
Academy Award®
Winning Director

Annie Eastman
Director/Producer

Jim Berger
Show Creator/Producer

Amie Knox
Award Winning
Documentary Filmmaker

2015 By the Numbers

35
Alumni
studying film and art at college

106
Students
Spring & Summer
Courses

35%
YFW Students
Receiving Scholarships

21
Films
Produced

Festival Acceptances

Denver Film Festival
Stanley Film Festival
CinemaQ Film Festival
Steamboat Student Film Festival
Colorful Colorado
DAFFY

Community Partnerships

Colorado Film School
Colorado Office of Film, Television, and Media
Rocky Mountain College of Art and Design
Mike's Camera
Denver School of the Arts
Denver Open Media

Young Filmmakers at work

Contact:

Patrick O'Brien
Director of Development
patrick@denverfilm.org
303.595.3456 x 219

Kevin Smith
Corporate Sponsorship Manager
kevins@denverfilm.org
303.595.3456 x 226